Alice Pike Barney; 'The Talented One'

Alice Pike Barney is best remembered for her efforts to transform Washington, D.C., into the nation's cultural capital during the first quarter of the twentieth century.

Barney's interest in art began in childhood—an interest she shared with her multimillionaire father; Samuel Pike, a patron of the arts in Cincinnati, Ohio.

At 17, Alice became engaged to explorer Henry

Morton Stanley. Alice's mother, Ellen Pike, was dismayed—while Alice was 17, her betrothed was 33—and she insisted that they wait to marry.

While Henry was away on an expedition in Africa, Alice married Albert Clifford Barney, son of a wealthy manufacturer of railway cars in Dayton, Ohio

On a visit to New York City in the summer of 1882, Alice & her daughter Natalie happened to meet Oscar Wilde delivering a lecture at their hotel. Wilde spent a day with Alice & Natalie on the beach; their conversation that afternoon changed the course of Alice's life, inspiring her to pursue art seriously despite her husband's disapproval.

In 1887 she travelled to Paris to be nearer her two daughters, who attended Les Ruches (a French boarding school founded by feminist educator, Marie Souvestre). While there, she studied painting with Carolus-Duran.

When Natalie wrote a chapbook of French poetry, Quelques Portraits-Sonnets de Femmes (Some Portrait-Sonnets of Women), Alice Pike Barney was pleased to provide the illustrations. She did not realize that the book's love poems were addressed to women and had no idea that three of the four women who modeled for her illustrations were actually her daughter's lovers.

Albert, alerted to the book's theme by a newspaper review headlined "Sappho Sings in Washington", rushed to Paris, where he bought and destroyed the publisher's remaining stock and printing plates, insisting that Alice and Natalie return with him to the US.

The gossip would have no lasting effect on the Barneys' social standing, but Albert thought it was a disaster. His temper only worsened when friends forwarded him news clippings. His drinking increased, as did his blood pressure, and two months later he had a heart attack; dying in 1902 at the age of 54.

Eight years later, aged 53, Alice Pike Barney scandalized the newspapers' society columnists by marrying 23-year-old Christian Hemmick, the son of the ambassador to Switzerland. The marriage didn't last long—the couple was divorced by 1920.

In later years, Alice Pike Barney invented and patented mechanical devices, wrote and performed in several plays, and worked to promote the arts in Washington, D.C.. Many of her paintings are now in the collection of the Smithsonian American Art Museum.

Alice Pike Barney died in Hollywood, California on October 12th, 1931 at the age of 74.

She rests in the family plot in section 102, lot 2251 at Woodland Cemetery.

Lera Rae

(5/30/1903 - 10/15/2005)

Lera Rae was born in Kentucky on May 30, 1903 and studied dance at the Paris Opera Comique Ballet School in France. She then became a member of the Imperial Society of Teachers of Dancing in London and was a teacher at the famous Denishawn School of Dance in New York. Arriving in Dayton, Lera Rae opened her first dance school in 1926. She would continue to teach dance in the Dayton area for 54 years.

In the late 1950s, she began working with the Adventures in Movement program, encouraging children with mobility, vision or hearing difficulties in learning to dance. In 1970, Lera Rae was honored for her work by being named one of the Ten Top Women of Dayton.

In 1994, Lera Rae moved to Arkansas. She died October 15th, 2005 at the age of 102 and rests in Section 116 of the Woodland Mausoleum.

Symbols of the Season:

Lilies

Cultivated for at least 3000 years, lilies are a group of flowering plants which have great symbolic value throughout much of the world. These iconic flowers are even recognizable in the Prince of the Lilies fresco in the ancient Minoan palace at Knossos.

Lilies are the flowers most commonly used at funerals; symbolically, they signify that the soul of the deceased has been restored to a state of innocence. In the Victorian language of flowers, lilies portray love, ardor, and affection. In the iconography of the Catholic Church and some Orthodox traditions, the lily is particularly associated with the Virgin Mary—a clue lies in the common name; 'Madonna Lily'.

Though many plants have "lily" in their common name, they don't belong to the same genus. Lily of the valley, flame lilies, daylilies, water lilies and spider lilies may be beautiful & symbolically important flowers in their own right, but they are not technically lilies.
